

Faculty Positions in Pediatric Hematology/Oncology/
Stem Cell Transplantation & Regenerative Medicine
Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor, Clinician Educator Line
Stanford University School of Medicine

The Division of Hematology, Oncology, Stem Cell Transplantation and Regenerative Medicine in the Department of Pediatrics at Stanford University is seeking board certified/eligible Pediatric Immunotherapy applicants who can contribute to the Division's clinical and research enterprise at the Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor level in the Clinician Educator lines.

- The major criterion for appointment as Clinician Educators is excellence in the overall mix of clinical care, teaching, administrative and/or scholarship appropriate to the programmatic need the individual is expected to fulfill.

Academic rank and line will be determined by the qualifications and experience of the successful candidate.

Excellent opportunities for clinical research and clinical program development are available with a subspecialty focus in Pediatric Immunotherapy. This recruitment supports an ongoing initiative in the Department of Pediatrics to expand the Division of Pediatric Hematology, Oncology, Stem Cell Transplantation and Regenerative Medicine and its growing research and clinical portfolio.

The successful applicant should have clinical experience in Pediatric Cellular and Immunotherapy and an interest in program development. We are particularly interested in candidates with experience in clinical investigation, clinical trials, and correlative research across leukemia, brain tumors, and solid tumors of childhood. A successful candidate will have experience developing, growing, and guiding clinical and translational scholarship in pediatric oncology and a record or potential of successful collaboration and mentorship.

Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.
